CHURCH BELLS TO RING HOURLY SUNDAY 9 TO 6

Local church bells will ring on the hour Sunday from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m. The occasion is the opening of the first assembly of the World Council of Churches at Amsterdam, Holland. Twenty-seven American denominations are sending a total delegation of 225 church leaders to this meeting which closes on Sept. 6.

The Amsterdam meeting carries to fulfillment the impetus begun in 1910 when a conference of churchmen was held in Edinburgh, Scotland. In 1920 small meetings were held at Geneva, Switzerland, and in Stockholm, Sweden, in 1925. In 1937 two great meetings in Edinburgh and Oxford brought into being the provisional committee for the World Council of Churches, with plans for the first assembly to be held in 1941. The war intervened and the 1948 session will now do the work originally planned for seven years ago. In the war years, the provisional committee functioned as a liaison body, uniting Christian people across the barriers raised by war. Service to prisoners of war and outstanding persons has been carried on by the provisional committee of the World Council.

It may well be that coming generations will look back on the events of Aug. 22-Sept. 4 as the most formative in building world unity of any in our time. In this day when men and women everywhere long for security and peace, it is significant that the Protestant and Orthodox Churches of the world are meeting to take forward steps toward unity in faith and in action.

Read "Toward Christian Unity" on page 14.

REDSKINS SPLIT AT LOVELL SUNDAY: TAKE LOVELL, 5-2 DROP TO TAMWORTH, N. H., 4-3

The heretofore practically voiceless Bethel Redskins war-whooped to a 5-3 decision over a slightly favored Lovell team last Sunday. Ted Young pitched masterful ball against Lovell allowing only four hits and two runs in the seven inning encounter. The Redskins got seven hits off Thurston of Lovell.

As a result of their victory over Lovell the Redskins played the Tamworth, N. H., Tigers in a second game. Young asked that he be able to pitch the second game also. He again pitched well but J. Fortier of Tamworth was a little tighter in the clutches.

Ted gave up only six hits but wild pitched the winning run home in the fifth. The Redskins collected ten hits but weren't able to connect consistently in the clutches. The team is very pleased to note that a few local fans see fit to travel to see their road games.

Don't forget the Redskins play Lovell again at the old fair grounds Sunday at 2:30. Come on out!!!

Mrs. Adelaide Sakeforth of Boston left Monday to visit friends at Milan, N. H., after spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Henry Boyker.

Mrs. Florence Johansson and Mrs. Lillian Kaceland of Carthage, and Mrs. Ethel Cross, Locks Mills, were dinner guests, Sunday, of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Rice and family. Mrs. Carlton Lapham and daughter, Nellie, called there, too.

A meeting of the Methodist Sunday School workers was held Monday evening at the camp of Rev. William Penner, Northwest Bethel. A picnic lunch was enjoyed followed by a worship service, led by Mr. Penner, and a business meeting.

The newly reconstructed section of the Middle Intervale road, from the Locke Mills road to Harold Stanley's, was black-surfaced last week. This is a great improvement over the old road which had been in poor condition for several years.

MAINE HAD 13 AUTO DEATHS IN JULY

Speed, improper pedestrian actions and liquor has accounted for 89% of our highway deaths during the first seven months of 1948. During the month of July, 5 of the 13 highway fatalities reported were the result of speeding, 3 improper pedestrian actions, 2 were caused by the drivers falling asleep, 1 by defective equipment, another by operating under the influence of liquor and 1 was the result of improper bicycle riding.

These figures bring the number of fatalities for the first 7 months of this year to 93—an increase of 17 over last year and 15 over 1946 for the same periods.

The only bright spot in this accident picture is that Knox, Lincoln and Sagadahoc counties have not had a single fatal accident in their areas this year, to date. Lincoln county has, by far, the outstanding safety record since it has not had a fatal accident for the past 19 months.

A recent National Safety Council report, comparing highway fatalities during the first six months of this year, with those of a similar period during the two previous years, shows Maine with an increase of 2% over 1947 and 29% over 1946.

This comparison places Maine in the unenviable position of having the second largest increase in the country over 1947 and the largest recorded increase over 1946. This is alarming since the majority of the states are showing a decreased fatality record.

The next four months are the most hazardous of the year. Ten people already have been killed during the first 11 days of August. Both rigid enforcement of our highway laws and a greater cooperation of the public will be necessary to reduce our increasing death rate.—Sgt. JOHN deWINTER, Director.

GOULD CLASSES '10 AND '11 REUNE AT S. PARIS, SUNDAY

Twenty-one members of the classes of 1910 and 1911, Gould Academy, including husbands and wives, enjoyed a reunion at South Paris Inn Sunday afternoon. At the informal meeting which followed the banquet letters from Parker Russell, Ivan Arno, and the Misses Alia Smith and Mae Cross were read. Miss Methyl Packard expressed the thanks of the 1910 members for the invitation to join the reunion.

It was decided to hold a joint reunion next year on the third Sunday in August, arrangement to be in charge of Robert Thurston, Carl Brown and the Misses Methyl and Ida Packard.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Thurston, East Poland; Mr. and Mrs. Freeborn Bean, Rumford; Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Bean, Rumford; Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Judkins, North Anson; Miss Methyl Packard, Augusta; the Misses Mary Stanley and Ida Packard, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Arnel Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Winfield Howe, and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Brown, Bethel.

MINERAL AND GEM ASSOCIATION TO VISIT NUBBLE, AUGUST 23

At the last meeting of the "Oxford County Mineral and Gem Association," V. E. Shalin of the University of Maine, Orono, gave a very interesting and informative talk on geology and the formation of pegmatites. A field trip to the "Nubble" at Greenwood was planned for August 22. The group will leave Perham's mineral store, "Trap Corner," at 9:00. The next meeting is Monday September 6, 7:30 at Dana Putnam's, Rumford Corner.

Those present were: V. E. Shalin, Orono; Paul L. Cloke, Orono; Edward W. Perkins, Waterville; Hans H. Adler, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. E. Lawrence Sampier, New York City; Stanley Perham, West Paris; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Davis and son, Norman, North Newry; Keith Foster, Rumford Center; James Faulkner, Rumford; William Welch, Rumford; Leo Gannon, Rumford; Thurston Cole, Rumford Point and Mr. and Mrs. Dana Putnam.

BETHEL TAX RATES UP

As might be expected after the annual meetings in March, the tax rates of both Bethel town and Village Corporation are higher than last year. The rate for the town is 65¢ compared with 64¢ in 1947, and the Corporation rate increased from 610¢ to 613¢.

FIRE COMPANIES ORGANIZE IN CLOSELY KNIT FIRE-FIGHTING SYSTEM

A new, and strategic fire fighting system is underway for western Maine, in the organization of the Western Maine Firemen's Association, whose salient purpose will be the unification of men, methods, and equipment.

Born of necessity, stemming from the terrible effects of last year's fires, when men and methods were disorganized, this new movement hopes to bring to Western Maine a new security from forest fires, a better system of prevention of fires by close cooperation with the Maine Forest Service and an understanding by all small towns and communities of the importance of more equipment and much better preparedness.

The Western Maine Firemen's Association held its charter meeting on Monday, August 9, in the vestry of the church in Center Lovell. The meeting progressed rapidly and very efficiently under the apt guidance of the temporary chairman, John R. Fox, who was later to enjoy the distinction of becoming the organization's first president. Its by-laws and officers were elected and its purpose, made clear. The purpose, agreed to by all present, was to know what fire fighting equipment was owned by other towns, so that it could be used for the common good of all towns. Also, its purpose was to be the better acquaintance of men from different departments, so that during times of great emergency, any fireman would know and recognize the chiefs or lieutenants from other outfits, and get assigned to duties much quicker.

The officers for this charter year are as follows: president, John R. Fox, chief of the Center Lovell fire department; vice-president, Lyman E. La, assistant chief of Fryeburg fire department; treasurer, Lewis Lamont, chief of the Hiram fire department.

Other firemen in attendance were as follows: From Bethel: Chief Robert Blake, 1st Lt. Alton Hutchinsan, Capt. Frank Nary, Driver Roderick McMillin, Charles Freeman, Don Brownfield, so hard hit by last year's fires; John McDonald, 1st Lt. Preston McClukin, From Hiram: Chief Lewis Lamont, Wendall Twitcheel, Roland Clemens. From Fryeburg: Chief Clifton Hill, Asst. Chief Lyman E. La, From West Paris: W. D. Edwards and son. From North Fryeburg: Asst. Chief Don Buzzell, From Lovell: Carlton Merrill, Clayton Weymouth, Kenneth Day of East Parsonfield was also present.

The Center Lovell boys were out in force and gave generously of their energies towards feeding their guests. Those present were: Chief John R. Fox, William Dallinger, Charles Fox, Lester Allen, Leonard Norton, Leighton Brackett, Walter Fox, Gordon Eastman, Ernest Gary, Warden Henry Fox, Roy Smith, James Brackett, Arlington Files, Prudent Bedard, Shirley Gary, Don Andrews, Rev. Harwood, Stanley Milliken, Winfield Adams, Nelson Allen, Ralph McAllister, Herman Merrill, Archie Milliken.

The Western Maine Firemen's Association's next meeting will be at 8 p.m. on the second Monday of September in the Community Room at Bethel.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

On Saturday afternoon Mrs. R. R. Tibbetta gave a party in honor of her grandson, Larry, from Brunswick. Games and contests were enjoyed. Frank Flint and Lee Carroll won the door prizes. Billy Bonville and Geraldine Galvin won the prizes in the guessing games. Lorraine Swan won the contest prize. Larry Tibbetta won the treasure hunt. The birthday cake was made by Mrs. Mabel Robertson.

Harry Sawin attended the meeting of the Three Quarter Century Club at Bath Wednesday.

Carl Wight, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Wight, has completed his training in the U. S. Army and has returned home. He was stationed in Grafenwohr, Germany, for the past 17 months and was a member of the First Infantry Division band during that time. He plans to enter the University of Maine this fall.

ANNUAL REUNION OF 43d DIV. SEPT. 10-11-12 AT FORT ETHAN ALLEN, VERMONT

The annual reunion of the 43d Division will be held at Camp Johnson which is on the Fort Allen Reservation, Vt., on Sept. 10-11-12. Former members of the 43d will recall Brig Gen Herbert M. Johnson, who for so many years was the Adjutant General of Vermont and after whom the National Guard camp at Ethan Allen is named.

Notices to all former members whose addresses are known are being sent out by Alexander J. Smith, Chairman of the Convention Committee. There are, according to the officers of the 43d Division Veterans' Association, many former members whose addresses are not in possession of the secretary. They, of course, are invited to attend and are asked to send a notice to Col. Joseph E. Zimmer, 43d Division Veterans' Association, State Armory, Hartford, Conn.

The 43d Division, which in spirit will never die, had hundreds of Maine men in its ranks. The work performed by the 43d Division which came to be known as the "Winged Victory Division" in honor of its commanding general, the late Major General Leonard F. Wing, was outstanding among all the organizations that operated in the Pacific.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

Rev. and Mrs. M. A. Gordon of Cornish, Maine, formerly of Bethel, announce the engagement of their daughter, Rachel Eleanor, to Richard W. Mayer of Brookline, Mass.

Miss Gordon is a graduate of Gould Academy and Burdett Business College, a member of Theta Alpha Chi Sorority and Junior Advertising Club of Boston. She is now employed with the advertising agency, Hoag and Provandie, Boston.

Ten Million Votes

If one of the first steps of socialization—government ownership—should come now in this country, ten million voters would be added immediately to the payroll of the federal government. Sounds unbelievable, doesn't it? Ten million votes could make quite a showing on a Tuesday of any November. Mr. Wallace, or any other candidate, could go far with that kind of backing.

There are approximately that many persons employed in the transportation industry in the United States. Transportation would be one of the first industries to be marked for nationalization in this country as in Britain. This would include waterways, airlines, and possibly our trucks and their drivers. (Note on airlines: the British Overseas Airways Corporation, government owned and operated, is expected to show a $32 million loss!)

Is This Fantasy?

Even in taking over American railroads, a would-be dictator could get possibly 1,200,000 votes. There are that many people employed by our railroads. Not all of them would vote the party line, at first. That would reduce the number of rail employees somewhat, until replacements were available. Of course, a new and revised form of WPA would be set up to absorb the unemployed. But even a WPA-er can vote. Either way, perhaps, the government would appreciate votes!

Let me carry this satire too far. I will interrupt by saying that such a man as the above is not sheer fantasy. It could happen here. The worst thing about it is that the general public, and even many folks in the transportation industry, are unaware of the danger. Yet, economic collapse and consequent government ownership is quite possible. The nation would not have to go Communist or be conquered by Russia for this to happen.

Socialism, Quickly

Yet, some of those who are closest to the transportation industry fear that collapse may come. The trouble lies in outmoded forms of Federal regulation. Too much bureaucracy can take us to socialism more quickly than we think. This setting of the scene for trouble goes back a generation. The nation has compromised on policies so long that the result is a patchwork of rules and regulations that creates as much inefficiency as possible. Over 50 government bureaus are charged with supervising some kind of transportation, with little overall coordination of policy. Actually, in event our common carriers find business no longer profitable, the government is already well prepared to begin the take-over.

Elbow-room!

The trouble is that despite the largest volume of peacetime traffic, too few of our common carriers are able to make enough profit to attract capital to the industry. If nationalization comes in this country, it may well come as because private capital has dried up as far as transportation is concerned.

The problem is this. We must have efficient, low cost transportation, and we must have it the American way. At a time when our railroads, like other forms of transport, are trying desperately to reconstruct themselves after an all-out job in wartime, we can ill afford to shackles them with heavy tax burdens and other financial obstacles that prevent rehabilitation. As the president of one of our largest life insurance companies puts it: "Our railroads need financial elbow-room."

Maine Youths Win

TOP MODEL BUILDERS in Maine are Dr. Henry Hand, Cumberland Center (left) and Robert Chandler, Jr., of Auburn, who won first state honors in the Junior and senior divisions, respectively, for model cars they designed and entered in the 1948 Fisher Body Craftsmen's Guild competition. In addition, the youths also won first place in their divisions for the area covering Maine, Vermont and New Hampshire, and will go to Detroit to compete for national awards of university scholarships.

"HOW TO WIN FRIENDS and INFLUENCE PEOPLE"

A BIT OF PRAISE GOES A LONG WAY

A COMMON parental habit is that of criticism. Yes, of course, I know that parents mean well, and I know, too, that criticism and even severe discipline is necessary at times. But criticism and discipline alone won't make for the successful training of your children. A little deserved praise will work like magic.

I know from experience how helpful and heartening a little praise can be, particularly if you are trying to master some new and difficult technique. I know, for I have recently been trying to improve my wretched ability at fly-casting. I go trout fishing not more than five or ten hours a year. Sometimes I don't wet a line for a couple of years at a time. My success is just what you think. I wrap my lines around trees and brush and get my hook caught in my left ear.

D. Carnegie

Last summer I went trout fishing in the Canadian Rockies. My casting was terrible, but occasionally I would surprise even myself at how far I could cast. Sometimes when I did this, my guide would exclaim: "That's the way to do it; you are getting the knack of it now." Did that help? It certainly did.

But when he neglected to praise me for the slightest improvement, I felt a sense of discouragement. I was disappointed.

You see, I was hungry for praise over something I knew I was not doing well. Poor as I was, I didn't want him always to recognize my faults. I wanted him to show me how to improve my performance. I wanted him to tell me that fly-casting was easy to learn, and that I would soon get the hang of it become a great fisherman. How I thrived on that praise! His words of encouragement made my confidence soar, inspired me to do better, increased my efforts, made fishing a great pleasure for me.

But what if he had given me nothing but harsh criticism? I would have been discouraged; I would have been resentful, although I was paying him to teach me what to do. And I would not have shown anywhere near as much improvement. And so it is with your children!

THIS WEEK IN Washington

A RATHER bored Washington has taken in stride the two-ring spy probe, one conducted by the house un-American activities committee and the other simultaneously by the senate investigating committee.

There are several schools of thought here with reference to these sensational headlines. The conservative school of thought is that the probes are unconstitutional and will accomplish little except to give the people generally a feeling of insecurity in their government set-up... and that is what the communists want to accomplish after all.

Another school is that the whole thing is diversionary... a political move to take the minds of the people off the more important special session of the congress considering anti-inflation legislation.

And a third school of thought is that although a New York grand jury heard all the same evidence from the same witnesses over a twelve-month period and brought indictments against the twelve top communists in the country, a smear of them who either held government offices during the war or still hold offices is necessary to show the people the loyalty probe set-up by congress and by the administration are not working properly.

President Truman said, "They are using these hearings simply as a red herring to keep from doing what they ought to do."

As a matter of fact, the federal bureau of investigation knows all about all the evidence that has been brought out at the two hearings and apparently has held it insufficient to bring indictments. It must be remembered that when these alleged communists or communist sympathizers were connected with the government during the war, Russia was our pal and military ally. It has only been since the shooting war stopped that conditions have changed.

CONGRESSIONAL QUARTERS, a non-partisan congressional reporting agency, says that lobbyists have reported they spent three and a half million dollars since the start of this year to influence congress. How much pressure money actually was spent to pass or defeat bills cannot be estimated, since only 226 organizations out of some 800 registered filed their expenditures. The justice department, attempting to enforce the law on financial reports, already has brought two indictments. Biggest money expenditures, the report says, went into the battles over margarine tax repeal, the TVA steam plant appropriation, the Taft-Henderson Wagner housing bill, and the displaced persons act.

In connection with consideration in the house of the federal aid to education measure, asked for by President Truman and already passed by the senate, the National Education Association has issued a statement declaring that although the nation's school system is indeed hard pressed as it is, they face even more difficult problems in the years immediately ahead.

Similar as it could be learned, the special session did not consider the Taft 200 million dollar aid to education bill even in committee. But William E. Glavin, executive secretary of NEA, says that there will be seven million more children in school within the next seven years than there are at present.

This is a 30 percent increase over present enrollment of 24,300,000 school children this year.

"A public school program for these additional children," Glavin said, "will require an added operating expenditure of more than a billion dollars if the 1947-48 unit costs are to be maintained. Further increases in prices, or any attempt to make teaching more attractive and to encourage more young people to prepare for teaching, would mean that the increase by 1955 must exceed this one billion dollars."

To care for this additional enrollment, NEA says, 300,000 more teachers will be needed in addition to the 570,000 teachers on the school staff this year. And the cost for new school buildings to house them, under present pricing, means a total expenditure of approximately ten billion dollars.

NEA officials pointed out that, "at a time when all states are sharing an unprecedented national income of over 200 billion dollars annually, it is paradoxical that there should be so many obstacles in the way of financing an adequate program of education."

DRAINING THE NATION

Last year, the fire insurance industry rendered a greater public service than ever before. More losses were paid to more individuals for a greater total of dollars than in any prior year. At Texas City, the companies dealt with the greatest single disaster since the San Francisco fire of 1906. Other costly disasters included the Florida hurricane, the Maine forest fires, and the tornadoes in the southwest. Fire insurance thus stood solidly between thousands of families and businesses and financial disaster. It provided, swiftly and efficiently, the money needed to rebuild and repair. It was always on the job. It proved again that no form of protection is more necessary.

Yet, this industry's magnificent record of service is in itself indicative of the criminal carelessness of the American people when it comes to fire. In a single year we have destroyed $700,000,000 worth of property through fires which were largely preventable. And the rising fire waste cannot be entirely blamed on inflationary values. The number of fires—no less than the damage done—has steadily increased.

The main reason for prevention, of course, is to save life and property. But there is another financial reason as well. For four successive years, the industry has operated at a loss. A number of states have recently allowed increases in insurance rates. This is just one more of the drains fire imposes on the nation.

The annual state 4-H club camp will be held at the University of Maine from August 23 to August 27. Each county is entitled to eleven delegates at the camp. Delegates will be chosen for the excellence of their 4-H club work. Kenneth G. Lovejoy, state 4-H club leader, Maine Agricultural Extension Service, will be in charge of the state camp.

STATE OF MAINE

Oxford, ss.
TO THE HONORABLE JUSTICES OF THE SUPERIOR COURT to be held at Paris, within and for said County of Oxford, A. D. 1948.

Respectfully represents, Paul O. Martin, resident at Paris in the County of Oxford and State of Maine that he was lawfully married to Alice O. Martin of Paris unknown at Auburn, in the County of Androscoggin and State of Maine on the 29th day of May A. D. 1922, by Rev. J. M. LaQuenne, a person duly authorized to solemnize marriages therein;

That the Libellant and Libellee cohabited in this State after their said marriage;

That the Libellant resided in this State when the cause of divorce accrued as hereinafter set forth;

That the Libellant has resided in this State in good faith for one year prior to the commencement of these proceedings;

That the Libellee is a resident of this State;

That the Libellant has ever been faithful to his marriage obligations, but that the said Libellee has been unfaithful to the same;

That there is no collusion between your Libellant and the said Libellee to obtain a divorce;

That on the first day of July A. D. 1926, said Libellee utterly deserted your Libellant without reasonable cause and has continued said desertion for three consecutive years next prior to the filing of this libel;

That the said Libellee has been guilty of cruel and abusive treatment toward your said Libellant. To the great injury of his health and happiness.

That two children have been born to them during their said marriage, of whom both now living, viz.: Armand, age 24 and Paul, age 22.

Wherefore your Libellant prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony between himself and the said Libellee may be decreed; And your Libellant further alleges that the residence of said Libellee is unknown to your Libellant and cannot be ascertained by reasonable diligence.

Dated at Paris, Maine this 9th day of June, A. D. 1948.
PAUL O. MARTIN Libellant.

STATE OF MAINE
Before me,
E. WALKER ABBOTT
Justice of the Peace

ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

happenings That Affect the Dinner Table, Dividend Checks and Tax Bills of Every Individual—National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare

The political battles will be bitter this year (with no quarter given). A Republican party which has been on the outside for 16 years is as unified as it has ever been in its history. Mr. Truman, despite the obvious aura of pessimism that pervades his party, seems honestly convinced that he can win, and is obviously determined to seize up on every opportunity that might put the opposition in an unfavorable light. Some analysts think that his stock has risen substantially since his western tour, a fact which may also be of service to the Republicans, by cutting down the spirit of over-confidence which has made many feel that the election is in the bag.

From certain points of view, the Progressive Party convention was the most interesting—and certainly it was the most remarkable. It was apparently designed to combine the best features of a crusade and a carnival. When vice-presidential candidate Taylor and his family crooned before the microphones, something new in the way of precedents must have been established. And, while the Republican and Democratic platforms certainly went out on a limb in an attempt to offer as much as possible to everyone, the Progressives put them in the shade. Their platform assures world peace, promises socialization of basic industry even as it endorses "progressive" capitalism, pledges the immediate elimination of any and all injustices to minority groups, and so forth. It was the longest and wordiest of the three platforms and by far the most inclusive. It was, however, pretty vague as to just how its objectives are to be reached, and at what cost to taxpayers.

It would be folly to deny the fact that Mr. Wallace has many sincere and impassioned supporters. Other people are amused, and still others are revolted. It is perfectly possible that the ticket will receive between 5,000,000 and 10,000,000 votes this fall. In any case, Mr. Wallace will make an aggressive and highly vocal campaign, and he will capture a great deal of newspaper space both here and abroad.

The problem is this: The Progressive Party is unquestionably backed to the hilt by the American communists and their fellow travelers. Correspondent after Correspondent, including some of the least hysterical and most respected observers of world affairs, have said that Norman Thomas, the socialist leader who, incidentally, did an exceptionally interesting job in reporting all three conventions for a press service—has charged categorically that the Communists have obtained control of the party's policy committees, and Mr. Thomas can hardly be described as a reactionary who sees red around every corner. However, Mr. Thomas is a classical socialist who believes fervently in civil liberties and democratic processes, and he hates the Communists and all their works. He, like Dorothy Thompson and others, think Mr. Wallace may do great harm to American prestige by his policy of appealing Russia.

Mr. Wallace had a simple answer to the Berlin crisis—he would simply do what the Kremlin wants and withdraw from the city. He said nothing about what this might do to the morale of the small states which have aligned themselves with the West—and nothing about what might happen to legions of Germans who have cooperated with us in the administration of our interests in Germany.

Equally important, say those who fear the Progressives may undermine our present bi-partisan foreign policy, is the fact that the party's platform did not say a single, solitary word in opposition to Soviet aggression. Even a very mildly worded plank, which would have put a little of the blame for current world troubles on Russia, was defeated. By contrast, this country was blamed for practically everything that is going on. If the Progressives are to be believed, we are wild imperialists, while the Russians, it seems, are reasonable men whose only wish is a just peace.

This attitude, naturally, is being given a terrific play in the Russian press. The Kremlin's objective is to make Europe believe that neither the Republicans or the Democrats represent true American feeling when it comes to foreign affairs, and that Mr. Wallace's stand has overwhelming public backing. President Truman and Governor Dewey are tarred with the same brush, and Mr. Wallace is always presented as a hero.

It remains to be seen how much capital the Russian leaders can make of that, and how much damage, if any, the Progressive Party will do to American standing. But it is a topic of very real influence today.

On the major party side, nothing new has been added. Mr. Truman's speech to the special session of Congress followed his past statements. It has long been obvious that price-control will be his biggest domestic issue, and the speech laid heaviest emphasis on that. The Republicans, as was to be expected, threw the blame for inflation back into the White House lap. The whole matter will

LIQUIDATING THE MIDDLE CLASS

An economic review published by one of the country's leading banks recently touched on a phase of inflation that must be given a great deal more thought than it has received so far. It said, "Month by month, year by year, people who have been considered, with justice, the mainstay of our society—the great middle class—have been rewarded for their prudence and self-reliance in steadily depreciating coin. These are the people who save for retirement, for a rainy day, for family security, as best they can with the resources at their disposal. They are the people who responded most generously to the calls for funds in the war loan drives of the war emergency. They are the people who pay most of the taxes. They are the people who provide wise leadership in community life all through the country. It is a dangerous business, in a free society, to grind them down, take away their incentive, frustrate their efforts toward security . . .

"Back of this inflationary trend are government policies of spending, lending and guaranteeing which, more than any other single factor, have been responsible for our taut economy and for the spiraling of prices. The irony of it is that so much of this spending is pressed in the names of social welfare and liberalism. Yet those who see in such spending the menace to the security and free of the individual are classed as reactionary and insensible to humanitarian considerations.

It is sometimes argued that the enormous commitments of the governments—such as those for military purposes and European aid—make any worthwhile reduction in the budget impossible. That is not so. The unparalleled magnitude of necessary spending should cause the utmost intensification of efforts to cut unnecessary spending to the last possible dollar. Why, to take one example, should the government keep on pouring more million down the rat-hole of socialized power development when private enterprise is eager and able to do the job with private funds.

Again, how long will it take us to learn that a government which sets out to protect the people against every exigency of living is a government going hell bent down the road that leads to unbridled inflation and eventual dictatorship? Every tyrant comes into power with specious promises of what he will do to help the "common man," whoever he is. And once he gets power, the common man becomes a slave.

Government-inspired inflation, along with all the other ills that it creates, is the most insidious enemy of freedom that exists. The economic liquidation of the middle class is just one of the symptoms. All other classes will get theirs sooner or later.

"PIGS IS PIGS"

by MAURICE R. FRANKS

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Maurice R. Franks is Director of the National Labor-Management Foundation and Editor of its official publication, PARTNERS.)

There is nothing to support the argument that compulsory unionism in any form is a necessary adjunct to good union operation. In fact, the case of the railroad brotherhood offers ample evidence that the very reverse is true.

Twenty-eight years of my life have been spent with two of these unions and, during this period, plenty of opportunity was afforded me to study the methods whereby the brotherhoods as a whole have always operated. Particularly revealing has been their success in attracting and holding members—wholly without benefit of anything even remotely resembling a closed or union shop.

There are, for example, 21 separate and distinct unions operating on the American railroads, their potential combined membership being approximately 1,350,000. And yet, with railroad workers left totally free to accept or decline union membership, the number of dues-paying members enrolled as of today actually exceeds 1,500,000—or about 150,000 members in excess of the potential!

For the moment, this may sound a bit fantastic. In fact, it will come to make sense only when we stop to realize that in a "free market" the brotherhoods have so thoroughly sold the advantages of union membership that railroad workers, almost to a man, respect their organizations sufficiently to continue paying dues even after their railroad employment is at an end—whether, as oldsters, they retire from active service, or whether, as younger men, they leave the railroad for other fields of endeavor.

Certainly the railroad brotherhoods are as desirous as any other labor organizations to enhance their memberships, and their organizers are not prone to leave any cause of his union membership; 2) the Closed Shop, as practiced by certain piggish unions up until the passage of the Taft-Hartley law—a system which deprived workers of the right to secure employment without first joining the union; and 3) the Union Shop, as still practiced by certain unions with utter piggish abandon—the system deprives workers of their right to continue to earn a living unless they join the organization within a specified period of time.

Viewing the situation squarely, any fair-minded man can not but be drawn to the conclusion that any compulsory requisite for employment, other than that of the workers actual capacity to perform a job, sums up to no more than brazen hoggishness of an order which our enlightened American society can hardly afford to tolerate.

Open Shop, Closed Shop, Union Shop—no line can be drawn to separate them in essential spirit and final affect. The simple fact remains that regardless of the color of their hide or the name they go by, always and forever PIGS IS PIGS.

The Powder Blue Dress

SHORT-STORY BY ELEANOR BROWN

AMY Morton surveyed herself critically in the mirror. She nodded with satisfaction. The dress still fitted, all right. The material had been too good to be allowed to go to waste. The dress had originally been a plain, out-of-date powder blue affair Amy had acquired on a memorable summer she had fallen in love with Greg. Amy sighed and fingered the soft material reminiscently. Handsome, dashing Greg. He had been the idol of the resort and Amy had flattered herself that she, a plain, white collar girl, had succeeded in captivating him. Now she laughed bitterly. Sure, it must have been fun to bring the stars to a young girl's eyes and then ditch her. Well, men were poison to her now.

Amy thought of her younger sister, Anne. Anne was a little blonde with the characteristics that Amy so achingly lacked. Young, soft, vulnerable. Amy studied her own face in the glass. Work and disappointment had set her features in austere rigidity. Her lips were thin and stern, her jaw firmly molded. It was hard to believe she had ever been young. Yet somehow, in this dress... Amy's thought was interrupted as the front door slammed and Anne called up.

Anne walked wearily in. At once she noticed the dress. "Oh, Amy, where did you get that," she asked. "I—I picked it up some years ago. A foolish extravagance I've regretted ever since."

"But, Amy, why haven't you ever worn it? It's such a perfectly beautiful shade of blue—and you couldn't touch material like that today at any price."

Amy changed the subject. "You look worried, Anne."

"It—It's Johnny."

"Amy's lips tightened, as she picked up the newspaper her sister had brought in. 'That one has been seeing some other girl?'"

Anne managed a weak smile. "No, we've just had another quarrel."

"Well, Anne, someday you'll learn that men aren't worth the trouble. Lord knows I've always tried to tell you that. To them a woman is merely a toy; something to play with and then throw aside when the novelty has worn off. Johnny Wilson is no exception. It's best you rid yourself of him now rather than let yourself be for humiliation and heartbreak."

—stop trying to prejudice me against men. You're just that way because you were disappointed once! And I don't see you're any the happier for it—you're nothing but a poor old spinster with a martyr complex." She burst into tears. "The reason we quarrelled was because I refused to go to the veterans' dance with him. He thought it was my fault—that you had induced me to refuse. I told him off and now I wonder if it was worth it!"

Amy stared at the girl who ran into her own room and slammed the door.

About an hour later, she knocked on Anne's door. Before Amy had a chance to speak, Anne said, "Amy, please try to forgive me. I really didn't mean any of the things I said. It's just that—Amy's face softened and she finished—"That you love him so very much?" The younger girl nodded wordlessly.

"Then why did you refuse him?" "Because," explained Anne miserably, "I haven't a thing I can wear to a dance like that."

Amy bit her lip. Anne's wardrobe was indeed skimpy. Her small salary, together with the high cost of living, had made frivolities almost impossible. "Anne," she said, "call Johnny up and tell him you've changed your mind."

The girl raised her tearful face from the pillow. Amy snatched, "Everything's going to be all right." She added softly, "I promise you that, dear."

The next day, while Anne was at work, Amy phoned the office that she had a bad cold, then stayed in her room the entire day. When Anne arrived home, Amy showed her into the bathroom, to a fragrant tub. Amy imperiously shut the door. While Anne was taking her bath, Amy laid a dress across the girl's bed. Anne came bustling out and hugged her ecstatically.

"Oh, Amy!" "How could you do it?"

"If you cry your eyes are going to get red and that young whelp will think I've been beating you." Amy managed, her own eyes filling with tears. She held the girl away to get a better look. Amy's dress was hardly recognizable. The hem had been shortened. There was fine lace at the throat and sleeves and a gold belt. The girl's golden hair and blue eyes made the perfect setting.

The doorbell rang. Amy said quickly, "That's Johnny; I'll let him in. Straighten your lipstick. I promise not to devour the lad." And she hurried downstairs.

It was evident that Johnny was surprised to see her, and even more surprised at the friendly welcome. "The two were chatting like old friends when Anne descended. It was then that Amy found her reward—in the face of Johnny as he stared at the apparition that was to be his for the evening. Amy admonished, "You'll take good care of her, won't you, Johnny?"

Johnny took her hand. "You bet I'll take care of her, Amy." Turning to include the girl at his side, he added tenderly, "For the rest of her life, if she'll let me." Amy didn't think she could stand it a moment longer, the two of them there together; Johnny's face and Anne's shining eyes. Back in her room, Amy caught a glimpse of her face in the pier glass. "Why, I'm not so old," she thought, staring at her bright eyes and the newly softened lines of her lips. "I'm not old at all."

TOWARD CHRISTIAN UNITY

Dr. Henry Smith Lelper (right), associate general secretary of the World Council of Churches and secretary of its American committee, pointing to a poster on the Amsterdam assembly. Looking on are Dr. Douglas Horton (center), chairman of the American committee, and Dr. Samuel McCrea Cavert, general secretary of the Federal Council of Churches.

DELEGATES from 148 church bodies in 42 countries are on their way to the first assembly of the World Council of Churches to be held in Amsterdam, Holland, from August 22 to September 4. Over 500 American churchmen will attend.

Meanwhile, in the United States, five thousand Protestant and Orthodox churches are making preparations to ring their bells hourly on Sunday, August 22, in observance of the opening of the assembly. The ringing of the bells—every hour from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m.—is to "call Christians to a moment of silent prayer that the Amsterdam assembly may mark a rebirth of Christian faith."

The Amsterdam assembly will be devoted to future planning for the World Council and to addresses, study and discussion on the assembly theme, "Man's Disorder and God's Design."

Of the assembly committees, one will deal with a proposed constitution for the council. Another will recommend future policy for the council, and a third will deal with its administration. The fourth committee will study four "concerns" of the churches: the Christian attitude toward the Jews, place of women in the Church, lay training, and reconstruction and inter-church aid.

Among the outstanding American figures who will participate in the assembly are John Foster Dulles, a foreign policy expert; Dr. Douglas Horton, general secretary of the Congregational Christian churches; Mildred MacAfee Horton, president of Wellesley college; and Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam of the Methodist Church.

Plans for the formation of a World Council of Churches have developed through a long series of conferences, beginning with a World Missionary Conference at Edinburgh, Scotland, in 1910. The first assembly of the World Council of Churches was first scheduled to meet in 1941, but the war caused a postponement until this year.

According to Council officials, the new world organization will provide common ground for cooperation among Protestant and Eastern Orthodox churches. They expect some difference among United States and European delegates on the issue of state-planning in general and socialism in particular. Whether the assembly will include representatives of the Russian Orthodox church, either as delegates or as observers, is not yet known.

WEST PARIS

Mrs. Geneva Tuell, Correspondent

Miss Phyllis Flavin was guest of honor at a pre-nuptial party, Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Felix Mayblom. She received six English bone china cups and saucers and money for sterling silver. A delicious buffet lunch was served. Invited guests were Mrs. Edith Emery, Mrs. Elva Ring, Mrs. Leone Penley, Mrs. Beatrice Jackson, Mrs. Mona Cole, Lillian Ross, Mrs. Ellis Ellingwood, Mrs. Eleanor Ring, Mrs. Hazel Andrews, Mrs. Elizabeth Bane, Mrs. Harlan Woods, Mrs. LeRoy Dymont, Mrs. Wayne Lindsay, Mrs. Arthur Cummings, Mrs. Myrtle Richardson, Mrs. William Slattery, Mrs. Barbara Heath, Virginia McKeen, Mrs. Margaret Nangle, Mrs. Teresa Teahan, Mrs. Rose Roman, and Mrs. Harlan Andrews.

SPAULDING - FLAVIN

The marriage of Miss Phyllis Marguerite Flavin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William W. Flavin of West Paris, and Archibald Harris Spaulding, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Archibald H. Spaulding of Hingham, Mass., was solemnized, Saturday, August 14, at 2 o'clock in the West Paris Federated Church.

The Rev. Lynwood Bishop, pastor of the church officiated at the double ring ceremony. The church was decorated with evergreen and garden flowers.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of satin, panelled with lace, with a train edged with lace. Her veil of fingertip length cascaded from a Juliette cap and she carried a bouquet of roses, carnations and sweet peas with a shower of ribbon. Mrs. Glendon Smith, cousin of the bride, was matron of honor, wearing a hyacinth blue tulle gown. The bridesmaids, wearing gowns of yellow tulle. The flower girls, Veneta and Lauraine Flavin, cousins of the bride, wore party frocks. The attendants carried matching colonial bouquets and wore head bands of fresh flowers.

Charles Spaulding, brother of the groom, was best man. The ushers were Emery Flavin, brother of the bride, Joseph Heal, cousin of the groom, and John Spaulding, brother of the groom.

William Flavin, brother of the bride, sang, "I Love Thee," "O Promise Me," and "The Lord's Prayer." The traditional wedding march

Can't Miss

One of the greatest marksmen of the FBI was passing through a small town, and everywhere he saw evidence of the most amazing shooting. On trees, on walls, and on fences there were numerous bull's eyes with the bullet in the absolute center. He asked to meet the person responsible for this great marksmanship.

The man turned out to be the village idiot.

"This is the most wonderful marksmanship I have ever seen," said the FBI man. "How in the world do you do it?"

"Easy as pie," said the village idiot. "I shoot first and draw the circles afterward." — Telephone Tucks

Highest priced cow at the Holstein-Friesian auction held recently at the farm of Roswell Emerson at Island Falls was a six-year-old registered cow consigned by Fred J. Witter of Corinna, and purchased by Mr. Emerson for $125. Emerson also bought for $120 the second top animal consigned by High C. Briggs and Son, of Turner. This auction was sponsored by the Maine Holstein-Friesian Association and was the first of its kind to be held in Aroostook.

MILWAUKEE MAN DEPORTED . . . Paul Knauer, of Milwaukee (above), was among 111 Nazis who were deported by army transport to Germany. Knauer was head of the German-American citizen's alliance of Milwaukee.

Here's a recent potato tale that's stranger than fiction. It's about Maine potatoes and has been fully corroborated by farmers and the Commodity Credit Corporation. The government paid Maine farmers $2.90 per 100 pound bag for the potatoes and shipped them to Chicago at the cost to the taxpayer of well over $4 a bag. The potatoes were then sold to hog raisers at one cent a bag . . . meanwhile taxpayers were paying almost seven cents a pound retail for potatoes?—The Ocean County (N. J.) Sun.

Congressional investigations have shown that retailers' profit margins are lost now in the free market than they were in the controlled market of the OPA. Moreover there are no shortages of necessities.

HOLIDAY MAGAZINE FEATURES THOREAU'S MAINE CANOE TRIP

Nearly 100 years after Thoreau made his famous canoe trip up Moosehead Lake and down the East Branch of the Penobscot River, Evan M. Wylie and Photographer George Burns retrace his steps for a feature article in the September issue of Holiday Magazine, published Wednesday.

Entrancing description of the Maine wilderness, lakes and streams, illustrated by nearly four full pages of color photographs, points up the fact that this north-west corner of the State of Maine has changed less in the intervening years than almost any other section of America. Wylie even asserts that "in many spots there has been a retrogression toward the primeval state which Thoreau would rejoice over."

Quotations from Thoreau's own book, "The Maine Woods," are used as captions for most of the scenic color pictures, bringing out how closely the scene today resembles the sights that delighted the eye and heart of the Concord philosopher and naturalist. Scenes of Moosehead, Kineo, Chamberlain Lake, Mud Pond, Webster Stream, Second Lake, and the Sanders out-fitting store at Greenville are among the pictorial highlights of the article as the authors revisit "Thoreau Trails."

YOUR YOUNGSTER'S childhood days which seem to pass away so quickly can be vividly captured and preserved with our high quality photographs.
